Full Time Employment Opportunities

Advance Testing, an established New York-based construction materials testing and inspection firm, has opportunities available for individuals to perform testing and inspection of construction materials such as soils, aggregates, concrete, reinforcing steel and asphalt. Advance Testing trains and certifies employees within these disciplines through locally and nationally recognized programs.

Once trained and certified, students in Advance Testing's program are considered full-fledged engineering technicians. As engineering technicians, they are assigned to provide services throughout our area of coverage, which includes, but is not restricted to the tri-state area (NY / NJ / CT) and New England. Typical project types that employees are assigned to include highways, bridges, commercial buildings, airports, tunnels, fabrication plants, material production facilities, government and military sites, and schools. Applicants must be able to obtain any security clearances and background confirmation required by clients for sensitive projects and locations. In addition to potential field assignments, Advance Testing operates a state-of-the-art, accredited laboratory facility that employees may be trained to perform testing services in.

Advance Testing employees may be provided housing for the duration of their co-op based on need. All positions may require lifting and/or physical activities, including lifting of up to 75 lbs, walking / working on uneven surfaces, and driving to and from job sites (valid driver's license and working personal vehicle required). The majority of our work is conducted outdoors, in all weather conditions. Work hours vary, but include day, night and weekend shifts.

- Paid Co-op and Full-Time Positions Available
- Company-provided training and certifications
- The experience of a lifetime exceptional opportunity for career and relationship building
